East Baton Rouge Parish Police Jury Declares
"Kingfish's" Seizure of Control Unconstitutional, Demands Legal Action.

BATON ROUGE, La., Jan. 8.—(AP) A new revolt flared in Huey Long's political empire today as the sprawling officials of the Baton Rouge parish, seat of the state capitol, bluntly resisted the Louisiana dictator's legislative acquisition of control of the parish's affairs.

In a resolution overwhelmingly adopted by the parish's police jury, the recent special legislative act giving Long control of the elective governing body of the parish was declared unconstitutional and steps were taken to prevent the state administration's legislative acquisition of control of the parish's affairs.

Judge Wayne C. Borch dealt a blow at the Long dictatorship by granting a temporary injunction restraining the new sewerage and water board of New Orleans from functioning.

The board was created by one of the many Long control bills. Long appeared when the case was being argued and pleaded lack of jurisdiction as a similar suit was pending in state courts.

These taxpayers brought the suit, claiming the act giving Long control of the board deprived them of their rights. It was because of this piece of legislation that the public works administration held up more than $22,000,000 in a loan and grant to the New Orleans from functioning.

STATE TROOPERS HUNTING 'RIDERS' IN STRIKE SECTION

Four Men Named as Agitators Arrested; Thursday Is Deadline for Re-employing Strikers.

By ROBERT BUNNELL,
Associated Press Staff Writer.

ROSSVILLE, Ga., Jan. 8.—(AP) Night rider suspects tonight were being rounded up by national guardsmen here to prevent violence at the Richmond Hosiery mills, where union workers are on strike.

Four men, named as agitators by the military, had been arrested early in the night and eight or ten more were sought for questioning.

After the roundup, guard officers said the suspects would be brought before persons visited by riders last night and intimidated by threats.

Richmond Hosiery mill officials tonight set Thursday as the deadline for re-employing striking union workers.

In announcing the Thursday deadline, mill officials issued a prepared statement signed by John Fowler, chairman of the board.

The statement reviewed reasons for the 10 per cent reduction in wages which brought on the strike. It was inadequate to control production in Texas. Elsewhere the oil administration has set up quotas within the state, and seeks to control both production and shipment under the code.

In Texas, however, allocations within the state were made by the railroad commission. After an unsuccessful effort to control interstate shipment under the code, the oil administration resorted to section 9-C of the NIRA.

The high court's action yesterday set up a buzz of discussion that continued throughout the capital today. Two progressive senate reporters who have been instrumental in their criticism of NRA—Borsh of Idaho, and Nye, of North Dakota—had varying reaction to the decision.

The mill is ready, said officials, to re-employ all strikers except those "guilty of violence or intimidation."

"We have not and will not reduce wages below the code," said the statement. "We shall live up to the code and do all in our power to see that anyone who works will work and be protected and safe in doing so."

At the time the statement was made, a letter was given out for publication from Garnett Andrews, president of the mill, to Governor Talmadge thanking the governor for sending the guardsmen and commanding Adjutant General Lindley D. Moore, commandant of the troops, for their co-operation.

The letter said the mill officials realized the expense to which the state was going to provide troop protection, and that the state will make good any expenditure made in salaries of virtually all employees.

Shortly after three new councilmen took the seats, City Clerk T. W. G. T. U. told the assemblage, Governor Talmadge told her and others of a dry delegation that a referendum was certain to come up in the legislature.

There were about 150 persons at the rally, which adopted resolutions to open its books to auditors to support the claim that the wage cut was necessary and would accept from an arbitration board a wage scale "found fair."

The most drastic shake-up in the history of the government of East Point came Tuesday night at the reorganization meeting of the new council which saw three important city officers discharged and sweeping re-allocations made in salaries of virtually all employees.

ADMINISTRATION PLANS NEW LAWS ON OIL SHIPMENTS

Sen. Connally Drafts
Joint Resolution Penalizing Movements in Violations of State Quota.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—(AP) Obviously concerned that the supreme court had ruled against the first New Deal measure to reach it, the Roosevelt administration moved today to re-enact legislation designed to control the interstate shipment of oil.

Senator Connally, democrat, author of the section of the national industrial recovery act which was ruled illegal, immediately drafted a joint resolution specifically penalizing shipments in violation of a state quota, and authorizing the president to make rules and regulations for enforcement.

Eastern Secretary Ickes, the oil administrator, said he would confer with Chairman Cole, of a house commerce subcommittee investigating the industry, in order to expedite drafting of a new bill.

Code Inadequate.

Asserting that the section might have been "more carefully and skillfully drawn," Senator Connally said, "what was not affected by the decision was inadequate to control production in Texas. Elsewhere the oil administration has set up quotas within the state, and seeks to control both production and shipment under the code."

In Texas, however, allocations within the state were made by the railroad commission. After an unsuccessful effort to control interstate shipment under the code, the oil administration resorted to section 9-C of the NIRA.

Instead, Nye expressed concern that the agreement be accomplished to "enable the industry to get away from this trifling competition and stabilize prices."

Support for a new grant of power for controlling oil came also from the other end of the capitol. Representative Disney, co-author of an oil control bill presented at the last congress, said he was considering introducing a re-enactment of the annual section

Escaped Cobb Lifer Caught in Hapeville

Delois Clements, 24, son of a former member of the state legislature from Telfair county, and who with Hoyt Evans, 33, escaped December from the Cobb county prison camp, where he was serving a life sentence, was recaptured Tuesday night in Hapeville by Chief E. M. Moore of the Hapeville police, and his assistant, Captain C. C. Johnson.

Evans, who fled from a Cobb county highway truck, was identified by R. P. Dawson and J. M. Purser, of Towns Ga. He was arrested at North Avenue and Sims street, Hapeville, and did not offer resistance.

He was convicted of the murder of Luther Clegg, Scotland, Ga., merchant in 1931 after Clegg's body had been found near that town.

A woman giving her name as Mrs. A. J. Fadella, who said she lived at Griffith's tourist camp at Hapeville, was questioned by police Tuesday night on suspicion following her arrest while she was engaged in telling fortunes Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. R. Landers, 509 Boulevard, N. E., according to police reports.

Mrs. Fadella will be confronted at the city jail this morning by Mrs. Fannia Mae Dahley, 20, of 200 Peachtree street, who Sunday reported to police that she had lost a $4,500 diamond ring and $20 to a woman who came to her house under the pretext of telling her fortune. The woman, Mrs. Dahley said, told her to fold the ring in a $20 bill, which she did. The bill later turned to a piece of plain paper and the ring was one of the 10-cent variety, she told police.

GERMAN PLACED ON CRIME SCENE

Neighbor of Lindbergh Says He Saw Hauptmann Near Home.

It surprises once Dr. Condon gets on the stand, however. There will be a few angles developed which even the press may not have heard about. Prosecutors expect that when Dr. Condon takes the stand, he will accuse Hauptmann directly as the man who took the ransom from his hands.

Way Paved For Testimony.

The way was paved for his testimony today by several witnesses, including his friend and bodyguard, Al Reich, who drove Dr. Condon to his rendezvous with the ransom collector in Woodlawn cemetery early in March of 1932. Dr. Condon paid the ransom in St. Raymond's cemetery, the Bronx, the night of April 2, 1932.

The defense, however, by Edward Reilly, objected again to the introduction of the so-called "kidnap ladder" as evidence, and once more Supreme Court Justice Thomas W. Trenchard sustained the objection, leaving the ladder merely an exhibit marked for identification.

Attorney-General David T. Wilentz, of New Jersey, tonight denied published reports that Harry "Red" Johnson, deported sailor friend of Betty Gow, is sailing for America to testify against Hauptmann.

"There is nothing to it," said Wilentz emphatically, when asked about a report that Johnson was being brought from Norway by the state of New Jersey in an effort to repudiate defense attempts to show he might have had guilty knowledge of the kidnaping.

The identifications of Hauptmann were made in a silence unbroken save for the harsh breathing of many of the spectators. On each occasion, unable to restrain themselves, they held their breath, eyes straining to catch every word, eyes intent on the witness and on the pale defendant. He sat with his shoulders straight and stiff against the back of his chair.

Moves Head Negatively.

The carpenter moved his head in short, negative rolls, as Hauptmann wandered to his side and touched him. "Right there," the elderly witness quavered.

When Hauptmann muttered the "ilar" retort to Perrone, Reilly attempted to get the answer into the transcript. The stenographer had not taken him down, however, and Justice Trenchard ruled the defense must wait until "the proper time" to show what the defendant said.

The accusation by Hochmuth, a shaking little man with pointed white beard, caught the crowd unprepared.

The 51-year-old witness at the intersection of the lane that runs to the Lindbergh house and the Mercer county highway, said he was standing on his porch the forenoon of March 1 and to stop at the ditch.

"The driver, whom he identified as Hauptmann, glared at me as if he saw a ghost," said Hochmuth. He pointed a quivering finger at Hauptmann.

Reilly objected to the manner of identification and Wilentz requested Hauptmann to step down and point out the ladder he had seen.

He came across the courtroom quickly, almost eagerly, his eyes fixed beside him. They squeezed into the space between the prosecution and the defense tables, and the little man suddenly stopped short in front of the prisoner and touched Hauptmann's shoulder.

Spectators Tense.

The spectators had risen from their seats and were staring at the old man and the unmoved prisoner. Colonel Lindbergh watched.

The old man returned to the witness chair and the courtroom relaxed.

Then the witness mentioned the ladder he said he saw in the car but not attempt to identify it as the sectioned "kidnap ladder."

Reilly was unable to shake the old man's identification on cross-examination, or to get him to say that a trooper had pointed out Hauptmann to him in the courtroom. He did acknowledge, however, that he really knew Hauptmann in the court jail.

It was after the state again had failed to get the ladder admitted as evidence that Perrone, a chunky man with sparse black hair and wearing glasses, took the stand.

Perrone's Story.

Perrone said Hauptmann hailed him at Knox place in Gun Hill road, the Bronx, on the night of March 12, 1932.

"This man kept looking around first before he ever said a word to me. When he did he asked me if I knew where Decatur avenue was.

"I told him I did and that I was familiar with the neighborhood. When he put his hand in my overcoat pocket and brought out an envelope.

"Looking at the envelope he said, 'Do you know where 2974 is?' I said, 'Yes, I am familiar with the neighborhood.' This man, looking around again, put his hand into the same envelope and said, 'Give me a dollar bill to deliver the envelope.'

"And when he did that he walked to the rear of my cab and put his hand in his pocket." - Taking down my license number." - Taking down my license number.

Reilly objected to the conclusion drawn, and Wilentz reframed the question. A few more questions brought forth the same conclusion. Hauptmann was taking down the ladder notes.

Then the man waved to Perrone and he drove off, going to Dr. Condon's home, he said.

Trooper Again on Stand.

Shortly after court convened, Corporal Frank A. Kelly, police fingerprint and identification expert, resumed the witness stand to continue his examination.

Wilentz first turned to the Linda-berg nursery and State Police Detective Nuncio de Gaetano was sworn.

The attorney-general asked him to describe the course from the kidnaps window to the crib.

"You could walk a direct line from the window to the crib without encountering an obstruction?" A. Yes.

Q. You said yesterday that you could find no fingerprints in the nursery.

A. That is right.

Wilentz then invited cross-examination.

Engage in Argument.

The trooper and Reilly engaged in an argument over an identification system. Finally the attorney said:

"You want us to believe, Mr. Kelly, that although Mrs. Lindbergh had been in the nursery and although Betty Gow was in there to treat the child and rub its chest, you could find no fingerprints?"

A. That's true.

Q. No fingerprints of anybody?

A. Yes, sir.

Describes Arrival at Nursery.

Reilly had the witness describe his arrival at the nursery.

Q. What was the first object you attempted to photograph or take fingerprints from?

A. The note.

Q. It was in the envelope.

A. Yes.

Reilly had the expert give a description of his method of taking prints.

Kelly told how he brushed black powder on the envelope and note and then brushed it off carefully.

"Don't you know," snapped Reilly, "that by brushing the powder off, you're liable to brush the fingerprint off. Don't you know the proper way is to have it off?"

The witness was apnognized.

"I know that blowing the moisture of your breath can destroy a print."

Tells of Examination.

He then told how he examined the kidnaps window sill and the entire nursery but found no fingerprints.

Reilly harped on this point, stressing that not even the prints of Betty Gow had been found, although the nurse had been at the crib when the kidnapping was described.

Reilly then turned to the footprint.

"How would you preserve footprints?"

A. I'd measure them and make a mold of them.

Q. What would prevent you from taking measurements?

A. If someone else did before I got there.

Q. Did someone else measure the footprint at the Lindbergh home?

A. I understand Detective Degaetano did.

Q. Did you take any measurements?

A. No, sir.

Q. Now about the ladder, where did you examine it?

A. I looked it over and processed it right in the hall.

Q. What is the condition of the ladder?

A. It was dry.

Q. It was a cold night. Was there no frost?

A. No frost.

Q. What kind of a ladder did Colonel Lindbergh have in his garage?

A. An extension ladder.

Q. How high did it go?

A. I didn't try to raise it.

Q. Detective, did it move or

A. No sir.

Excuses Witness.

Reilly then excused the witness, subject to recall to make fingerprint tests in court.

Wilentz asked one question on redirect. He directed Kelly to state what he processsed the ladder.

"Between 1 and 1:30 (a.m.)"

Kelly stepped down and State Po-sworn.

The surprise witness answered a number of questions about when he moved to Hopewell before Reilly snapped:

saw?"

A. March 1, 1932.

Q. What day of the week?

A. Tuesday. I think it was Tues-dirt green car?

A. About noon. It was a clear day.

was repeated. This is a point of inquiry."

WET FIGHTS LOOM IN 3 DIXIE STATES

South Carolina, Alabama Legislatures Convene. Arkansas Next.

By the Associated Press.

Fights for prohibition repeal in three day southern states loomed as two legislatures convened Tuesday and another prepared to open its sessions Monday.

The opening of the South Carolina legislature in Columbia was preceded by a resolution in both bodies. In the senate, a resolution requesting the judiciary committee to draft a liquor control bill "to carry out the will of the people" was presented. A bill proposing legalized liquor sales under the supervision of county commissioners was introduced in the house.

Governor B. M. Miller, of Alabama, appealed before the Senate of the legislature, it opened in Montgomery, made a direct appeal for retention of the state's prohibition laws.

The proposal that an Arkansas state liquor monopoly charging a profit not to exceed 15 per cent be established is to be presented also as a means of stopping bootlegging, its supporters said.

The South Carolina house at its opening session elected Claude A. Taylor, of Spartanburg, as speaker, and Sol Blatt, of Barnwell, as speaker pro tem. Senator John F. Williams, of Aiken, was re-elected speaker pro tem of the senate.

ARMED TROOPERS GUARD 25 MEN BEING HELD HERE

While national guardsmen with fixed bayonets Tuesday stood guard over 25 men brought to the auditorium from Rossville, trouble resulting from a strike of workers in the Richmond Hosiery Mill necessitated calling out the troops on Sunday night, other guardsmen patrolled the mill area and stood guard as new workers, estimated at 400, entered the mill for work Tuesday morning.

The 25 prisoners, charged with "pernicious milling," according to Adjutant General Lindley Camp, have been held on the upper floor of the armory since they were brought here Monday night in trucks. Rainy weather has made it inadvisable to transfer them to the detention camp near Fort McPherson, where some 125 persons arrested during last year's textile strike were interned.

General Camp announced that the present prisoners will be held in custody for the duration of the Rossville strike. With army cots and a regulation field kitchen the men are comfortable, housed and well fed and they appeared entirely satisfied with their lot on Tuesday.

Sixty persons, including 10 women, were arrested in the strike area Monday but all except the 25 men now held were later released. They are practically all residents of Tennessee, the main line running through the town of Rossville about 100 feet from the Richmond mill.

Substantial Gains Registered In First National Bank Report

Executives of the First National Bank of Atlanta who were promoted to positions of greater responsibility at the annual meeting of stockholders held Tuesday. Left, Albert G. Matthews, former manager of the West End branch, made an assistant vice president. Center, Claude H. Blount, promoted from manager of the Decatur branch to assistant vice president. Right, Ralph A. Huie, former manager of the Peachtree and North Avenue branch, also appointed an assistant vice president.

Shareholders of the First National bank of Atlanta, at their seventh annual meeting Tuesday received with applause the annual report of the president, John K. Ottley, showing that the institution had just closed a most successful year—with substantial increases in deposits and in the volume of business being handled by all departments.

Stockholders re-elected all directors, who in turn promoted the following to three branch managers to assistant vice presidents: Albert G. Matthews of the West End branch, at Lee and Gordon streets; Ralph A. Huie, of the Peachtree and North Avenue branch, and Claude H. Blount, of the Decatur branch. All other officers were re-elected.

The report of President Ottley asserted that at the end of the first full year's operation under the 1933 banking act the bank faces the new year with an "especially gratifying enhancement in efficiency and financial strength" and "the consciousness of the strength which our continued gratification is expressed over the cordial relationship between the bank and the public which was attributed to the sympathetic co-operation with our customers in the consideration of their problems which has characterized the efforts of our entire staff."

First in U.S.A. Field.

The report revealed the fact that the First National had from the first visualized the federal housing act "as an added opportunity to co-operate with the government in its program of recovery," and that the institution is first in Georgia and tenth among the banks of the entire United States in the number of modernization loans handled. The First National made the first modernization loan in the southeast and also was the first institution in Georgia to qualify under Title II of the federal housing act.

Special attention was also called in the report to the First National's monthly repayment loan department which has handled more than 10,000 loans aggregating more than $2,300,000. The First National, in 1928 and to the institution's co-operation with the administration's farm commodity loans totaling $5,000,000.

The report showed an increase of 110 in the number of owners of the bank's capital stock, who now total 1,746.

Particular attention was called to the growth of the institution's trust fund, under the direction of William T. Perkinson, vice president and trust officer, necessitating enlargement of its quarters and additions to the personnel of this department during the year. Harold T. Patterson having been recently elected assistant trust officer.

Directors Thanked.

Mr. Ottley thanked the directors and members of the finance committee for the wise and valuable council which they constantly placed at our disposal and for the keen interest they have displayed in the welfare of the institution."

Claud H. Blount, promoted from assistant cashier and manager of the Decatur branch to assistant vice president, is 40 years old, a native of Senoia, who entered the banking business with the Farmers and Merchants Bank of Senoia. He was cashier of the Bank of DeKalb County at the time he was admitted to the branch of the First National in 1922, and was retained in the post of manager, being promoted to assistant cashier and branch manager in 1929.

Ralph A. Huie, promoted from assistant cashier and manager of the Peachtree at North avenue branch to assistant vice president, is 40 years old, a native of Morristown, who has been connected with the First National for 23 years. He was appointed branch manager in 1922 and became assistant cashier in 1929.

Albert G. Matthews, promoted from assistant cashier and manager of the West End branch, to assistant vice president, like the other two new assistant vice presidents, is a native of Georgia, having been born in 1905 and 39 years ago. He has been manager of the West End branch since 1924, and was appointed assistant cashier of the First National and branch manager of West End in 1929.

Officers Re-elected.

In addition to the re-election of Mr. Ottley as president and Mr. Robinson as executive vice president and promotion of the three branch managers, directors of the First National re-elected officers as follows:

Vice presidents: R. Clyde Williams, J. Stewart, R. James Alexander, W. William J. Adams and Herman Jones Jr.; vice president and trust officer, William T. Perkinson; cashier, Frank M. Davis; assistant cashier, C. E. Pollard, Freeman Strickland, Frank T. Davis, Arch Avery Jr. and E. G. Walker; assistant comptroller, O. G. Reed; assistant H. Dair, Charles A. REVOLT THREATENS "EMPIRE" OF LONG

Kingfish's dictatorial rule in Louisiana is ended by a day's trial tomorrow night of the newly formed "Square Deal Association," which is pledged to fight Long's absolute control of state politics.

Whether the police jury will seek the assistance of the "Blue Shirts," as members of the association are known, has not been decided.

The police jury called on Sheriff Robert L. Pettit, who also has felt the wrath of Long's enmity, to "lend his authority" to keep control of the parish courthouse. Another act of the last special session of Long's legislature took from Sheriff Pettit the right to name his own deputies.

Encouraged by the police jury's defiance of Long's rule, leaders of the "Square Deal" tonight pushed plans for their meeting tomorrow night, when an effort will be made to organize "Blue Shirts" on a state wide scale.

At its first meeting the association demanded of the governor, O. K. Allen, and his legislature, immediate repeal of the 340 so-called dictatorial laws enacted last year.

Governor Allen has not publicly taken cognizance of the demands.

The trial tomorrow night falls on the third day of a month of living on the part of the parish of Long's.

The East Baton Rouge police jury's resolution was based on an opinion rendered by District Attorney John F. Reed, holding the appointment act unconstitutional. Under the act, Governor Allen is empowered to name a sufficient number of jurors to equal the number of electors in the parish. Since a few of the 13 elected jurors have been friendly to Long, the act is in effect, gives him complete control over the parish.

One of the reasons District Attorney Odum held the act unconstitutional was that it was local legislation by indirection and another was that it deprives the people of the parish local self-government.

AT PARTING OF WAYS

WITH LONG, SAYS FARLEY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—(AP)—Reverberations from the speech yesterday of Senator Huey P. Long of Louisiana, were manifold today, including the comment of Postmaster-General Farley that "Huey will have to travel his own way, I guess."

"It is the first time to me in the last session," Farley said, "I suppose he will this session."

Long, in the senate, yesterday referred to administration leaders as "imps of hell."

"We'll grin and bear it," Farley said at this press conference.

Dr. Ernest Finet, Bolivian minister, declined to comment on Long's charges that the Standard Oil Company and Bernard Baruch were aiding Bolivia against Paraguay in the Chaco War.

Long contended the oil company was contributing to the Bolivian forces in the Chaco region, and that Baruch was involved as a result of recently urging the United States to buy Bolivian tin.

It was learned from an authority source that no major federal program nomination would be made for Long in this session of congress because of anticipated opposition from Long. The policy to be adopted, it was said, would be to appoint acting officials after adjournment of congress.

FARLEY PARAGRAPHER IS OPERATED ON HERE

Carey Williams, of Greensboro, Ga., nationally known paragrapher, whose work appears in the Constitution, was recovering Tuesday night at St. Joseph's infirmary from an appendectomy performed Tuesday afternoon.

The son of James C. Williams, editor of the Greensboro Journal-Herald, and brother of Cranston Williams, secretary of the South, newspaper publisher, of the Association, Chattanooga, in the 1934-1935 edition of "Who's Who in America" under 40 years of age.

The Constitution, in whose columns two years ago two to one, Senator Black said, "have no reason to believe it will not pass again."

Miss H. E. Connelly, of the Atlanta Journal, who has been quoted as saying "I am for it."

Connelly, who is chairman of the house labor committee, said his revised measure "meets every objection raised to it in the last congress and if we can get it up in the house it will pass."

Under the president's work relief program, Connelly said, "we are increasing the scale of wages in private industry. It should be opposed by the American Federation of Labor and other labor organizations."

"I'm for the president's program," Senator Black stressed, "but it won't meet the real problem of unemployment because of conditions in private industry."

Miss Esther Herren, well-known young Atlanta woman, died Tuesday afternoon at the residence at 850 Hemphill avenue, N. W. She was 34.

Miss Herren, according to Dr. J. R. Childs for several years and was an active worker in the Pryor Street Presbyterian church, where funeral services will be held at 10 o'clock Thursday morning. The Rev. Lawrence A. Davis and the Rev. A. L. Flury will officiate and other arrangements will be made by the Atlanta Ministry & Lowndes.

She is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Herren of Atlanta; three uncles, J. F. and R. H. Pickard, of Atlanta, and D. H. Pickard, of Sacramento, Cal., and an aunt, Mrs. J. H. Hughes, of Hapeville.

levies included in the last bill which otherwise would lapse and the revenue from which is necessary for proper financial operations of the treasury.

Harrison, upon whom exceptional and unforeseen burden develops, I don't look for any substantial change."

Question today, Chairman Harrison, of the senate finance committee, said the matter of new taxes "depends upon developments." These, he said, would have to be watched.

"We may have to get some more money," Harrison said. "I hope not."

Advocates of the 30-hour week girded for a finish fight in congress to-day confident a majority want to enact the measure at this session despite administration opposition.

"Everyone is looking to it," Senator Black, democrat, Alabama, predicted, while a co-author, Representative Connery, democrat, Massachusetts, said "it is the only solution to the unemployment problem."

Both said that while President Roosevelt's $400,000,000 work-relief program will take care of some of the unemployed million, it would not solve the problem of employment in private industry.

"The measure passed the senate two years ago two to one," Senator Black said. "I have no reason to believe it will not pass again."

Connery, who is chairman of the house labor committee, said his revised measure "meets every objection raised to it in the last congress and if we can get it up in the house it will pass."

Under the president's work relief program, Connery said, "to a large extent we are increasing the scale of wages in private industry. It should be opposed by the American Federation of Labor and other labor organizations."

"I'm for the president's program," Senator Black stressed, "but it won't meet the real problem of unemployment because of conditions in private industry."

ATLANTA, GA., JANUARY 9, 1935.

THE MAYOR'S MESSAGE

The annual message of Mayor
Key to the city council carefully and thoroughly presents the condition of the municipal government, reviews the record for the past year and outlines the problems that must be solved during 1935.

It is an able and forceful document, although couched throughout in terms reflecting the evident desire of the mayor for harmonious co-operation during the year between the executive and legislative departments of the city government.

Despite this spirit of conciliation, the mayor does not fail to frankly and firmly tell council that economy must be enforced in every department of the government during 1935, and that any effort to raids the city treasury will be fought by him to the end.

The mayor calls attention to the "staggering deficit of nearly one and a half million dollars," and cautions that if the city's credit is to be maintained this deficit must not be increased. He further cites that "it is a sad commentary on a city when the current bills are outstanding for a year or more, for no good, sound business can be safely conducted that way, whether municipal or not."

Confronted with a condition of the city's finances, the mayor formally warns council that any appropriations beyond the ability of the city to pay, "I will refuse to pay, unless forced to do so by the courts."

Mayor Key emphasizes that the credit of the city can be kept from being endangered only through efforts to increase revenues and reduce expenditures. He proposes a reworking of obsolete tax laws in order that sources of revenue how-unouched shall contribute a proper proportion of the public revenues,
but he warns that these sources must not be too heavily taxed or they will be driven out of the state.

The suggestion that a municipal liquor store be established is renewed, with the argument that it would solve the city's financial troubles, increase sobriety in the community and reduce crime.

The mayor repeats his often expressed position that the public school system is too costly and is inefficient, and holds that the appeals to parents in the name of children are "tricks of the trade" resorted to by "professionals" to assure a continuance of waste and extravagance.

The message cites the urgent need for an expansion of the sewage disposal system and for a new city auditorium.

Taken as a whole, the message is a clear and logical statement of the needs of the city and what must be done if the public credit is to be maintained and efficient public services continued. Its conciliatory, although determined tone, holds bright promise of more friendly cooperation between the council and the mayor during the year—condition that will redound to better and more efficient government; to the definite elimination of raids upon the treasury, and to a period that will be marked by business and economy in the conduct of public affairs.

THE JAIL PROBE
Chief Sturdivant has acted with commendable promptness in ordering a thorough probe of the escape of a desperate prisoner from the new, and supposedly "escape-proof," city jail.

It should be definitely established whether the escape was, as charged, the result of failure to fulfill the chief's orders with reference to this prisoner. If this is proven to be the case, those responsible should be vigorously disciplined. If, on the other hand, the chief's orders were carried out, then it is only fair to those in charge when the escape was made that the facts become public.

It has also been charged that the jail bars are of such soft metal as to practically invite efforts at escape. In view of the fact that the new jail is supposed to be modern in every respect, and contain every known safeguard against escapes, a thorough and searching investigation should be launched to ascertain not only whether the bars were up to specifications, but whether the new structure is in other ways up to the standard set for it by the designers.

More than anything else, it must be established whether or not the escape is directly attributable to a flaunting of the chief's orders. No matter how secure the new jail
may be, the city will not be safe from the threat of escaped prisoners if there is not rigid discipline in the police department, with strict fulfillment of the orders of the superior officers.

SCREW WORM FIGHT SPREADS

The introduction in the house by Representative Green, of Florida, of a bill calling for the appropriation of $1,000,000 to be used in the fight against the screw worm in the southeastern states emphasizes the widespread realization of the imminent threat to the stock industry in this section from this rapidly spreading pest.

Several days ago Senator George offered a bill in the senate, asking $200,000 for the same purpose, and has since expressed the hope that the measure will be combined with the agricultural appropriation bill, which will not only further assure its passage but will make it easier to obtain additional funds if the campaign against the screw worm proves more costly than is now expected.

Representative Green also asks for $1,000,000 for a continuation of the campaign that has been waged for several years against the cattle tick. The fight against both the screw worm and the cattle tick, the chief enemies of livestock in this section, is proposed as a joint effort of federal and state authorities, and private organizations directly interested in the livestock industry.

Since no way to eradicate the screw worm has yet been discovered, it is proposed that the war against this pest shall be waged directly for control and to prevent further spread, while laboratory and experimental work is continued in the search for some method to either stamp out the pest, or immunize cattle from its attacks.

The stock breeders of the southeastern states have reason for genuine gratification at the promptness with which Senator George has acted to enlist federal aid in a fight against a pest that has spread practically all over the state in 18 months.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.

The First Nazi.

With the aid of my specially constructed radio set, I had the pleasure of listening in to a discourse made in Germany by Herr Arthur Dinter, author of the book, "Sin Against the Blood." One of the phrases which I noted down went like this: "Not only is Germany the greatest anti-Semitic nation in the world, but also the first and the greatest of Nazis."

The orator then went on to contrast the pure doctrine of aryanism and racism to the teachings of St. Paul, which he characterized as "Jewish, materialist and pacifistic." He then branded the Roman Catholic church as a "Roman Catholic institution and the Protestant church as an anti-Semitic Jewish organization, with many branches. Both, however, are at the end of their career, according to that speaker. "At any rate they are to disappear, both Catholicism and Protestantism,"

All this sounds very profound and important, but the question of religion is not what is carrying the German people. When the Nazi chiefs talk about that way, creating, as they imagine, sensation upon sensation, the real truth is that they are trying to divert the attention of the German people from the terrible plight in which they find themselves. We have learned in 1933 that torchlight parades and monster-meetings do not put the unemployed to work. "We have not performed any wonders," Dr. Goebels had to admit the other day, "we have not tightened our belts another notch or two during the coming winter."

And this is what the system which filled the world with its shouting about bringing "bread and well-being to everybody." Two years of it and Germany is worse off than before.

Blomberg's Interview.

The commander of the Reichswehr has been interviewed by the Associated Press. Asked a question about General Goebbels' remarks, he said:
"Since June this year (1934) the storm troopers have ceased to play at soldiers." A very clever reply, because now it would seem that with the storm troopers taken out of the military business, Germany is as pacific as anybody. The average citizen, reading General Blomberg's words, will say:
"What are those newspaper talkers talking about? Why are they harping on Germany? Don't you see now that the storm troops have been sent home?"

These questions are more important. That quip about the S. A. no longer playing soldiers is wholly irrelevant and constitutes an evasion.

A Diplomatic View.

A high diplomat, who has spent the major part of his official career in Germany, summed up the situation as follows to an English newspaper:
"Another revolt is brewing in the nazi party. We know now that 1,077 nazi leaders were executed by Hitler in June and that more than 700 were arrested again in the week before Christmas. No news was given out about the arrests, but it is known that they were made to frighten the voters in the Saar, who must say on January 13 whether they will rejoin their country to Germany or remain under the League of Nations.
The arrests and executions were therefore carried on in silence. But the end is not yet. Herr Hitler is beginning to appear as a great dangerous threat to the German people."

This is what is happening in his nazi circle. So, they are planning a division.
All their propaganda is calculated to impress the German people with the hostility of the world against Germany. They want war as soon as possible, to forestall an inner breakdown. But here they find the generals of the army opposed. The generals also want war, but they don't like Germany. They don't want to be ready for such a war before the end of 1936. The point is now: Can Hitler hold out against the waxing opposition until that time?"

Keep Your System Clean During Flu Epidemic

Nothing makes a person so susceptible to colds and other serious ills as a clogged-up intestinal tract, because this condition weakens the system and lowers your vital resistance. "Keep your bowel clean" is the warning of physicians at this time, "but don't defeat your own purpose by using purgatives so harsh that they leave your system in an exhausted condition."

Right now Dr. Hitchcock's All-Vegetable Laxative Powder is especially suited to the laxative needs of the body when colds are so prevalent. Why? Simply because it assures thorough elimination of waste matter from the body without irritating the system, does not weaken the digestive system because it contains only the most gentle vegetable laxative ingredients.

Kidnap Mob Suspect Slain in Chicago Raid

CHICAGO, Jan. 8.—(AP)—Russell Givens, slain by the department of justice in a recent attempt to kidnap the Barker-Karpis gang, was shot in the abdomen and probably fatally wounded late tonight by federal operatives who captured another man and two women.

Gibson was shot as he opened fire on a squad of about 15 agents sent to a North Side apartment to set a trap for him. Gibson's gun jammed and his shots were ineffective.

Willie Harrison, St. Louis, designated as the agent as a minor member of the gang, was captured. One of the women taken said she was Gibson's wife.

Among crimes blamed on the gang was the $200,000 kidnaping of Edward G. Bremer, St. Paul banker.

new jail, were issuing statements in which they blamed the escape to the laxity of those on duty at the jail at the time of the break, Councilman G. Dan Bridges, chairman of the police committee, announced that the committee would meet during the week and conduct a thorough investigation of the escape.

Gilliam and Burge, in their statement, attacked critics of the new jail, pointing out that the jail is not yet complete; that the cell from which Jones escaped was not intended to have the case-hardened bars, and that special cells, with the hardened bars, are now under construction.

"Two Elements" Blamed.

Gilliam in his statement said: "Two additional elements entered into and caused the recent escape from the new Atlanta city jail.

First, the fact that the new building is not yet completed, and the police department is operating with respect to the building, under makeshift conditions.

Second, that fact that a general order issued by the chief of police giving detailed instructions for the safe confinement of prisoners, with special reference to the present difficult conditions in the uncompleted jail, seems to have been generally and totally ignored and disregarded.

He added that the reason for the order being disregarded was not a matter for his committee, but one which comes under the jurisdiction of the police committee.

Committee Inspects Jail.

The special committee which inspected the jail Tuesday morning before Gilliam's report was written was composed of Councilman Frank Reynolds, Councilman Frank Wilson, Alderman Guy Coleman, Councilman G. Dan Bridges, Alderman Sid Tiller and Councilman John A. White.

In his statement, which was in the form of a letter to Gilliam, Burge stated that the new jail would not be completed until February 15 or March 1, and Jones was to be confined in a cell intended for accomplices by minor offenders only. He said that the design of the Atlanta jail has received the approval of the Georgia department of public welfare, officials of the PWA, as well as various city departments in authority, and is equipped in accordance with the latest recommendations of the department of nationally known authorities.

Burge pointed out that the building is equipped with guard corridors, permitting clear vision of all exterior walls, and that floodlights are played on the walls.

Commissioner Linder said that he felt that whatever kind of a market is maintained it should be kept orderly and should be "properly policed."

Linder Says Atlanta Needs Double Market

The city of Atlanta needs a double market, part of which would handle retail business and the other part interstate produce transfers, Commissioner of Agriculture Tom Linder Tuesday told a group of farmers and produce dealers who called upon him to discuss the farmers' market situation.

"Under our modern system a city the size of Atlanta must have a market," the commissioner said. "And, regardless of all the furor there always will be one here. I do not know who ought to provide it, the state or the city. It doesn't make much difference. I think the market ought to be in two sections, one for retail trade and the other for interstate or wholesale trade."

Commissioner Linder said that he felt that whatever kind of a market is maintained it should be kept orderly and should be "properly policed."

Armitstead, who will serve in the dual capacity of city clerk and city attorney; Byron H. Bond, who also will serve as city tax collector; Lynn Johnson, marshal, and J. M. Herriman, J. Frank Kelly and J. S. Jones, commissioners.

Waldrop was appointed chairman of the finance committee; W. O. McLesky, public health and sanitation; R. F. Sems Sr., water; Byron H. Bond, public property; J. C. Estes, public charity, and George Ross, streets, by the new mayor.

Circuit Court Ruling
Favors Taxpayers

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Jan. 8.—(AP)

Holding that dividends on stock sold "short" and charged against the seller's brokerage account may be deducted from reportable income as "ordinary and necessary expenses," the fourth United States circuit court of appeals today handed down a decision of far-reaching importance to stock traders.

The case came before the court on petition of Joseph A. Dart, of Richmond, Va., individually and as administrator of the estate of his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth C. Dart, for a review of the decision of the United States board of tax appeals.

The board of appeals had ruled that such dividend charges must be postponed and added to the cost of the stock subsequently purchased to complete the transaction. In determining the gain or loss, since such a transaction may not be completed until the following year, the difference can be important to the stock trader.

The case involved the right of stockholders to deduct from reportable income the amount of dividends received on stock sold "short" and charged against the seller's brokerage account.

Come Aboard for a Studio Trip With the Old Professor

If some of our more important minds can spend three weeks in Russia and come back to write serious tomes about what's wrong with Russia and why, I do not see why my three afternoons in movie studios on the coast can't be made into a column or two.

I can even tie this one up with sport because in 1928 when Georgia Tech's team was going through one of the lots they met a star named Jack Mulhall. And just the other day I stood watching Jean Harlow and William Powell work and one of the extras was Jack Mulhall. Sic transit Gloria Mundi. Or, so what?

Barret C. Kiesling, one of Howard Strickling's magnificent publicity staff at M. G. M., has led you right up to the door of one of the stages—a building about the size of a football field.

There was a red light burning—to open that door would have been murder. When the light burns the scene is being shot.

But finally you get in—past two big doors because the walls of the "stage" are four feet thick to keep out the sound.

It's dark until your eyes get set. And then you pick your way through the maze of cables, wires and ropes to where the "set" is located.

This time it was for "Reckless," a picture featuring Jean Harlow, William Powell and others—Nat Pendleton, Franchot Tone, Ted Healy.

Overhead are the big lights. Below are the sun spots, baby spots, floor lamps—all focused on the set so that the proper lighting is to be had—with the proper shadows.

The mike is on a long arm which can be extended or pulled in—like a trombone. They used to have a lot of trouble with that until someone thought of the old-fashioned well-sweep.

The camera is covered with a huge metal box which is called "the bungalow." The camera clicks. And when the director yells for silence he means it—even for the camera. I was on one set, a day later, where there was whispering off stage.

"So you think I don't mean it, eh?" yelled the director as he rushed out there.

After that the sound of a pin falling would have sounded like Niagara Falls.

That camera will always click, they say, because the film does not pass behind the lens as a ribbon but in a series of jets as each section of film is yanked before the lens and released—the movies are a series of individual pictures—thousands of them—and the movement is an optical illusion. (Just listen to him show off.) I know because this fellow Kiesling told me.

AND YOU, YOU BIG GOOF.

We'll suppose you are along. You look around and you see a small cubicle which serves as a dressing room on the set. It is not to be confused with the dressing rooms, really apartments, which the stars have on the lot.

In this one is Miss Harlow. So what do you do, you big goof? Why, you stare right at Miss Harlow, like the rude, goggle-eyed goof you are. And all the while you wonder why she does not rush out and punch you right in the eye.

Especially when you meet her and she is tops, a very nice person. And you have already heard from the people who know her and with whom she works that she is a swell person, impulsive, but strictly okay. And you take their word because she looks it and acts it and people who work with people really get to know them.

I do not see how they remain so because if, when you and I were young Maggie, we were tossed into fame and fortune and had people staring at us and fawning on us and lying about us—well, Maggie, old kid—I wonder if they'd say we were tops?

That platinum hair is real. And she has it "done" once every day.

THE MOVIE TYPES.

I almost fell right down in M. G. M.'s best street, bursting my sides giggling when Mr. Kiesling told me about the "types" registering at the central agency.

Can you imagine any member of the fair sex walking up to the casting window and saying, "I wish to be registered as a hag. Or if you are full up with hags list me as a homely girl"?

The extras are all obtained from the central agency and they are listed by types—pretty girls (thousands of them, so stay home and help mother even though the graduating class did select you as the prettiest girl), homely girls, maids, stout, healthy, sickly, underworld types, Latin types, oriental types, dress types and so on.

Do you have St. Vitus dance? Then go down and register. They had one patient on the list and used him in an underworld picture not long ago. The male "types" are listed as bald men, fat men, tough type, freaks, dope types, juveniles, short men, tall men, dress men and so on. The man who can grow a beard quickly is on the list.

It got me—hundreds of gals willing to be listed as hags if they can get in the movies.

OUTSIDE THE STAGES.

There are shops for making spears, chariot wheels, railroad car sets, furniture, trees of metal with tin leaves, statues of plaster, bricks of thin plaster that can be nailed on in strips. The marble bars are wood and the marble effect is paper—paper they make. It looks real close up.

There was an outdoor set under construction—large chunks of stone—all of plaster—painted and real in looks. They can make anything in their shops from a tree to a crusader's castle. And they don't make any errors on construction. They have many people doing research.

The grass may be real or it may be manufactured. The hills may be of dirt—they often are. All of it carried inside that big stage.

My hat's off to the boys. It's a great business and no dumbbells stick around in any of the spots where real action is concerned.

The people we met were all real people in a tough job. And the stars who have arrived had to have something to get there—plus a lot of hard work to help out.

And what nice people they are. Else they would punch a lot of us right in the eye as we go gawking along with eyes the size of poached eggs.

SMITHIES BEAT CARNEVILLE; TYPISTS VICTORS

Commercial Downs Russell, 34-16, in First Game.

By Roy White.

Tech High and Commercial High ushered in their prep basketball season with well-earned victories Tuesday afternoon. Tech High defeated Carnesville High, 49 to 28, on the Henry Grady court and Commercial won over Russell High, 34 to 16, on the Jewish Progressive Club court.

Tech High, runner-up to Lanier High in the state championship last year and Atlanta champions, won easily and without the services of Towery, a star guard. The Smithies were in charge of M. A. Olson, assistant coach, in the absence of Gabe Tolbert, whose father died late Monday night at his home at Commerce, Ga.

Pete Tinsley and Doyal Butler led the Tech High attack with 26 points between them. Both scored field goals from all angles. Sicks played well at center, with Schutte and Barnes holding up their part of the game with some fine guarding.

Tech High led, 30 to 15, at the half and was never in danger. In the first few minutes of the second half the varsity rang up several field goals in rapid succession and a substitute substitute came in. The substitutes continued the scoring, though not as fast as the varsity, with Gibson and Tucker setting the pace for the reserves.

Casey and Crump played well for the visitors and rang up 18 points between them.

In addition to the Loyd brothers, the play of Stein at guard and Paschal at center was good for the winners.

Two Californians Fly to Banquet

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Jan. 8.—(UPI)—At least two Californians are going to have another opportunity to see Alabama's Crimson Tide assembled, but not in uniform.

Jeff Coleman, graduate manager of athletics of the University of Alabama announced this afternoon that C. Elmer Anderson, president of the Tournament of Roses, and Jack Rissman, donor of the Rissman trophy, had wired them they were leaving Los Angeles tonight by plane to attend the annual banquet for the team Thursday.

Today it will be the Rissman trophy emblematic of victory in the Rose Bowl on New Year's Day to the Crimson Tide.

Hal Reynolds, chairman of the football committee, advised Coleman the two tournament officials would be present.

Grid Coaches Okay Selection of Harlow

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—(UPI)—The selection of Dick Harlow, of Western Maryland, as head coach of football at Harvard has met with the approval of metropolitan coaches and former Crimson players.

From Lou Little, of Columbia; Dr. Matt Daniels, Yale, now at New York University; Chick Macana, of Manhattan, and Jimmie Crowley, of Fordham, came unanimous endorsement of Harlow both as a fashioner of smart, hard-hitting football teams and as the type of man suited to the position left vacant by the retirement of Eddie Tamm.

HAMBURG, Germany, Jan. 8.—(UPI)—Construction will begin immediately on the largest sports stadium in Europe, to be used for the Max Schmeling-Steve Hamas bout in March. The arena will have a seating capacity of 15,000.

"I've never seen a better stadium," commented Harris. "Red's got a real school over there at Monroe and he's doing a real job of it. I understand his enrollment has almost doubled since he took over the job of president."

Harris was motoring down to Atlanta to see about his baseball contract with the Cracker Jacks and Mrs. and old friend the Barrows.

"I've never seen a better stadium," commented Harris. "Red's got a real school over there at Monroe and he's doing a real job of it. I understand his enrollment has almost doubled since he took over the job of president."

Harris thinks so much of Professor Barron's fine influence on boys that he is thinking of sending one or both of his sons there.

Eddie Moore, the Cracker manager, has a son enrolled at Barron's school. And "Red" is going to make a ball player of him.

Tech Opens Basketball Season With Celtics Here Tonight

ALL OLD ACES WILL APPEAR
AT AUDITORIUM

Hays and Hyder, New Stars, To Play for Jackets.

By Jimmy Jones.

They may be growing old with silver threads in their hair, but these Georgia Tech Celts, who furnish the opposition for Georgia Tech's untried quartet tonight at the Atlanta auditorium are still kings of the court.

The Celts are coming back to the city for their sixth annual visit. And always they are a show—as much of a curiosity to those who like their skilled basketball as they ever were.

Big Joe Lapchick, little Davey Banks, Dutch Dehnert, and all the rest will be with the cast. The game is scheduled to start at 8:30 o'clock with a preliminary game being played to the main attraction starting at 7:15 o'clock. Tech High and Fort McPherson play in the preliminary.

Coach Roy Mundorff, of the Tech team, has announced his starting line-up as follows:

Woodall and Hays, forwards.

Hyder, center.

Glen and Stacey, guards.

Hays, who is from Coach Bill Alexander's football squad, and Johnny Hyder are the new faces on the Tech team. Both are sophomores.

Coach Mundorff knows very little about his team this year or what it will do under fire, but Hyder, a fine shot and fast on the floor, is certain to add something to the team.

Other new men to be tried out are Kidd, guard; Sharpe, forward, and Holloman, a forward. Crawford is a holdover from last year's squad at forward.

Woodall, Stacey, Glenn and Morris Katz are the veterans of the Tech squad. Katz, who has been injured, may see some action tonight.

The Celts' lineup will be about the same as usual, with Banks and Hickey, at forwards; Lapchick at center, and Dehnert and Herlihy at guards. Tickets for the game may be bought at Milo's Tennis Shop today.

Prices for the game are $1.10 (reserved), 55 cents balcony and 25 cents for school children.

ParkertoTake
Neyland's
Post

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 8.—(UP)—The News-Sentinel said today that Colonel Paul B. Parker, line coach, the past four years, is being considered in head football coach at the University of Tennessee to succeed Major Bob Neyland.

"It is believed," the newspaper said, "that the field of coaches being considered for the post has narrowed down to the two assistant coaches, Colonel Parker and Major W. H. Britton, and that one of the two will be announced as the new coach this week."

Parker also will be named athletic director as well as head coach if he is selected to succeed Neyland, the News-Sentinel said.

MARVEL MEETS TWO FOES HERE

Wrestling fans at the Avondale arena will be given a real treat this coming Friday night when the arena stages another of its regular weekly shows.

A "Masked Marvel" from Birmingham will meet two stellar foes in the main event of the card. Sam Mandan and Bill Robison, two favorite Atlanta wrestlers, will take him on and he has agreed to throw them both inside of 45 minutes. It will be a winner take all affair. The Marvel weighs 225 pounds.

A strong supporting card is being arranged for Friday night. John Mauldin and Roy Rivers will meet in one of the other bouts. The rest of the card will be announced later.

The Avondale arena is conveniently located at the car line and is steam heated.

BAER WILL SIGN FOR BOSTON GO

BOSTON, Jan. 8.—(UP)—Max Baer, world heavyweight boxing champion, told the United Press tonight that he had agreed to fight some leading heavyweight in a 10-round no-decision bout at one of the Boston baseball parks in the spring.

Baer and his manager sign papers tomorrow with the Goodwin, A. C., which will promote the bout. He said he hoped Jack Sharkey, of Boston, former champion, would stage a come back and oppose him.

Baer said he would ask 37 1-2 per cent of the gate and $5,000 training expenses.

Baer said he planned to engage in three similar bouts for Chicago promoters.

An announcement by the Goodwin A. C. had described the proposed Boston bout as a "15-round title bout."

Dino Chiozza Signs
Philly Contract

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Jan. 8.—(UP)—Dino Chiozza, young Memphis infielder, today signed a contract with the Philadelphia Nationals, for whom his brother, Louis Chiozza, is second baseman.

Dino Chiozza started his professional career last year as a Memphis rooster, but spent most of the season in the Elast Dixie league, where he batted .208.

The Big 'Dutchman'

INDIANS GIVEN
'SPOT' POSITION IN JUNIOR LOOP

Rogers Hornsby Rates
Cleveland 'Class of American.'

By Paul Michelson.

CHICAGO, Jan. 8.—(UP)—Rogers Hornsby, long recognized as a peerless baseball seer, has shovved Cleveland's Indians strictly on the spot for the 1935 American league pennant fight.

Although no less than five clubs in the circuit figure their chances of landing the prized flag range from good to excellent this year, the usual to occur. Right here, however, comes the Cleveland handwaver by predicting the Indians would be the team to beat in 1935. Since the Rabbah, boss of the improving St. Louis Browns, made his prediction, the experts almost to a man have come out of winter hibernation to pick the Indians.

Mayo Hornsby is right again, but nothing but the liveliest kind of a race is needed to give the Indians the edge which took it on the chin again in the World Series warfare last fall. The Detroit Tigers, New York Yankees, Cleveland, Boston and Washington all seem to have a good chance to come through, while the other clubs expect notable improvement. Connie Mack, incidentally, is more than high on the young Philadelphia team and promises to give any club its money's worth.

Checking through the league, club by club, present developments point to these shortcomings and strengths of the various entries:

DETROIT.—The Tigers need at least one hard-hitting outfielder, who may be Chester Morgan, Texas league batting champion in 1934. They will have two promising southpaws in "Tiger Joe" Sullivan and Jacob Wade, two first-class rookies. And they're defending champs with plenty of class left.

NEW YORK.—Outfields is a mystery because of the cases of Babe Ruth, Fred Walker, Ben Chapman and Earl Combs. Infield doubtful. Pitching, while good, would be great if Johnny Allen can come back.

CLEVELAND.—Catching is the big problem but Manager Walter Johnson has good prospects in Brezenzel and George, who may take over the baton from the likes of Pyle and Jackson with brittle hands. Rest of team appears exceptionally strong with a great looking infield prospect coming up in the person of Louis Berger, New Orleans star.

BOSTON.—The Red Sox are the big "if" club of the circuit. Much depends on the comebacks of Lefty Grove and George Pipgras. The infield apparently too weak for a position, but continuing class may yet be strengthened by the acquisition—for a lot of money—of Melillo, of the Bronx.

WASHINGTON.—All the Senators ask is a season without disastrous inuries. Pitchers are good but getting older. Whitehill outpitched all his rivals on the Japanese tour, said Con- nie Mack.

PHILADELPHIA.—Jimmy Fox will start behind the bat if first base can be plugged. The team is young and strong and Manager Mack promises his A's won't always lose those 1-to-0 games.

CHICAGO.—Will depend almost strictly on young pitchers. Prospects are bright.

ST. LOUIS.—Hornsby did wonders with his material last year, but appears to have good-looking crop of rookies, who may hand the league a big surprise.

"HOT" OIL RACKETEERING IS BELIEVED HALTED

TULSA, Okla., Jan. 8.—(UP)—Hope chased gloom out of the oil country today as a survey disclosed no outbursts of "hot" oil racketeering since the supreme court struck down the petroleum section of the recovery act.

Expressions from leaders of the industry and state officials indicated a bill last session, saw in the high court decision, however, the lesson that congress must pass its own laws and not delegate legislative power to the executive.

In his statement, Borah took the same view, saying:

"The decision at least admonishes congress that it has a duty to perform. That duty is to legislate and not abdicate that duty it over to the people who elect the congress."

BILLIARD STAR DELIGHTS FANS

Arthur Thurnball, former world's champion three-cushion billiard player, who is playing at the Crescent Recreation Academy all of this week, is proving a sensation to the Atlanta fans. In games Monday night and Tuesday afternoon he defeated two of the outstanding players of the city at better than 2 to 1 in regular three-cushion billiards.

The first week or so of spring practice will be devoted to incoming sophomore. There are several fine-looking prospects in the bunch.

BETTER BACKS.

The Petrels are the best backs in the graduation—Mitrick and Williams.

Faulkner, halfback from Florida, is some talk that Captain-elect Jack McNeely.

Toccoa boy and an excellent guard, and Jim Darracott, varsity tackle, may not return in the fall.

Neither Tech nor Georgia will play any and only Mercer, meeting Navy in the second game on the schedule, is an exception.

Oglethorpe is arranging an attractive schedule, Anderson said. There are many offers of games and the school is not rushing post haste into contracts.

Young Alumni Coach John Patrick displayed plenty of the old savoir faire last year. His first as head coach, when he piloted the Petrels to five victories and a tie in 10 games.

PATRICK RETURNS.

Coach Patrick returned to the campus this week after spending the hol-

days at the ocean; Jimmie Fox,

Roger Mitrick, captain and star fullback of the team, will be with him.

tice will be devoted to incoming sophomore. There are several fine-looking prospects in the bunch.

Down the Alleys

The Ladies' Commercial Duckpin League will bowl the final three games of the first half this evening, and although the Atlanta Paper Company appears to have the first place with a three-game lead that they now have, a real battle for second and third place is assured.

Dowtown Chevrolet and Bick's Bowling Center are tied for second place; Model Laundry and Atlanta Journal bowlers Pinson Tire Company, Bick's Bowling Center ties up with Bell's Isle Garage, Southern Railway.

"We will start work on Monday if weather permits," Patrick said last night.

CUMMINGS FIGHTS FOR GOLD 'CLAUSE'

Attorney-General Defends New Deal Legislation in Supreme Court.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—(AP)—With the validity of the Roosevelt monetary program challenged and more than three-score billions of dollars at stake, Attorney-General Cummings went to the defense of essential New Deal legislation today in the supreme court.

In his first pleading before that tribunal since he took office, the attorney-general argued that congress was within its constitutional powers in forbidding payments in gold, regardless of the provisions of contracts previously signed.

He claimed directly at the familiar "gold clause" contained in almost all bonds, mortgages, contracts and the like, which provided for payment in the metal or its equivalent on demand, but which was outlawed in June, 1933, by a joint resolution of congress.

Alfonso and Victoria Arrange Separation

PARIS, Jan. 8.—(AP)—Spanish royalists here said today that an "amicable separation" between former King Alfonso and Queen Victoria is being arranged in London.

Although all talk of an annulment of the marriage has been dropped, due to the prominence of the pair, the royalists asserted, the papers are now being drawn for a legal separation providing for a division of contracts.

The action in which Cummings was interested was reached by the court last month, but before adjourning, agreed so that he scarcely had time to begin his argument. It will be resumed tomorrow, and may stretch over several hours.

Mr. Cummings specifically based his opening remarks on action initiated by Senator Marion of the Missouri in effect nullified, although he mentioned four of the cold clauses cases pending before the tribunal.

The attorney-general denounced the briefs of his opponents as contradicting each other and lacking in co-operation. He told the high court that the nomination of Ferdinand Pecora as justice of the supreme court in the first judicial district, New York city.

Boles, Swanson Star In "Music in the Air"

Another Broadway show that Hollywood has successfully adapted is "Music in the Air," starring John Boles and the glamorous Gloria Swanson this week at the Fox. You can depend on any show having Jerome Kern's music and Oscar Hammerstein's lyrics as being A-1. Add to that the personality and voice of John Boles plus Miss Swanson's charm and there you have a first rate musical comedy.

June Lang, a winsome young ingenue, and Douglas Montgomery, as Seglinde and Karl, carry the juvenile roles admirably. The setting is first in the little Bavarian village of Abendorf, but when Seglinde's father, the inimitable Al Shean, inspired by a bird's chirping, composes "I've Told Every Little Star," the setting changes to Munich, where the trio journey to the song published and used in a forthcoming operetta.

Boles and Swanson, as Bruno and Frieda, temperamental artists of the stage, supply a running fire of comedy as the two alternately storm and rage at each other, and then passionately embrace. The last scene is particularly effective as the two, after scoring a huge success on the stage, leave the theater arm in arm, singing one of the show's new numbers.

Several short features, including a Fox movie newsreel complete a thoroughly enjoyable bill.

"The food show has proved itself to be a reasonably efficient institution for familiarizing the public with foods, their values and has been effective in creating a desire among our customers for the better foods," he said. "Our customers are patronizing the food shows and have come to look forward to them because they know that in their interests to attend and learn all they can."

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.
When Jean Sawyer, 17, the father of three, was sent to prison for 18 years for using funds of the Gorham bank where he was employed for further stock market purposes. He has six children and educate his four children of whom Jean is the oldest and his favorite. She gets $200 a month to support her family and studies art at night and her work attracts the attention of Emory Stewart, head of the art department of the Gorham's big department store, owned by Spencer Cannon, the city's leading citizen. The day Edythe, Cannon's new campaign manager, has been his father Stewart to disclose "that Sawyer girl, as all reflect, is the cause, and Stewart says Jean is doing good work as artist, and he is particularly fond of her just as his father was pained after serving over four years. Mythe invites Marc for Sunday night supper. After failing to get a date with Jean, he says, "I'm going to make you like me a little. When she invites him later for dinner, he insists Susanne Ridgway, an expert, will be present. After several rubbers Susanne tells Marc on a sette beside her and proceeds to monopolize him so that he gets very nervous. "I'd like to see you much, if you're not too busy."

A few minutes later, the new gray coupe was parked a few doors from Le Salmon Naze.

"Well, see who's here!" Nan Gamble exclaimed cordially when Sturges entered. She left her place at the desk and came forward with her hand extended.

"Did you think I wasn't going to take you up on that invitation?" Mark smiled.

"Never can tell these days. But you picked a good time, if you care to look around. There are a few holy holes I can't let you peek into. But you might get an idea of the layout."

"I'd like to see you much, if you're not too busy."

For the next quarter of an hour, Miss Gamble's attitude was entirely that of a business woman. Sturges was treated to a professional account of trade methods and an exhibit of appliances whose existence was but un-suspected and bewildering.

"I never saw such beauty as complicated as this all," he admitted admiringly. "It's too much for me. Our shop will have to tiddle along as best it can, as far as I'm concerned. All I ask is that you leave us a little trade."

"Never tell me things are going for tint?" Nan agreed. "How about sampling our services?" she suggested with a twinkle in her eye. "If you have time for a manicure, I can give you a blonde or a brunette."

"Don't tell me men are going for tint?"

"Some of them do. But I was speaking of my understudies."

"I don't suppose you ever bother—"

"Yes, I do. I like to hold hands with a good-looking young man now and then—keeps me in practice. Come along. I'll operate." She led the way to a nearby booth. "Just a minute while I slide into a uniform."

Nan had nothing more to say until she lifted Sturges' fingers from the wrist and laid them one too gently on a towel.

"Unph. You're not such a good ad for your shop. Is this a sample of their stuff?"

"No," he smiled. "It's all of my own."

"Then you'd better get a new Scout knife. How's Jean?" she asked abruptly.

"Miss Sawyer is doing very well, as far as I know. I talked with her a few minutes not long ago—Let's see. It was yesterday afternoon, I believe."

"Yeah? I haven't seen her since that night we ran into you at Martin's. I wonder if her dad's found a job."

"I don't know," Mark evaded.

"He's going to have one tough time landing anything in this burg."

"Do you really think that?"

"I know it. I wish I could use a floor-walker or something here.... Not that it would do any good."

"You mean Mr. Sawyer requires assistance from his friends?"

"I'm not talking like that. She will. She's a proud little trick."

"She's very fond of you," Mark suggested.

"I hope she is. I think more of that kid than anybody I know."

"I suppose you see her frequently."

He hastened the observation so carelessly that Nan looked up with a sharp glance.

"Rather."

"Would it bother you if I smoked?"

"Help yourself."

Little more passed between them until Nan finished her task. "There," she said, with a final application of the buffer, "I think you'll pass in a crowd."

"I know it," Sturges inspected his nails, at the same time glancing at her wrist watch. "It was good of you to take me on. I've enjoyed my visit very much."

"God you don't forget me, I..." Nan broke off as there came the sound of a door closing in the outer

"It's one more square," Sturges said.

"I know. I'm dodging that one-way thoroughfare. This will take us around to your door, will it not?"

"If you'll show me the place..." he suggested tentatively a few moments later.

"It's on the right. Three twenty-eight."

When a stop was made in front of the house and before Joan could thank her escort, he turned to her with a smiling air of resolution.

Culbertson on Contract

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst.

Not Enough Trumps for Safety.

It is almost always dangerous to raise your partner's suit when you have only two or three of his trumps, and unless the suit has been rebid, even a raise with so strong a doubleton as the ace-king should be avoided. What is true of raised applies to a lesser degree to preference bids. Even when my partner has bid two suits I hesitate to show a preference for one of them if I have a doubleton. There are exceptions, however, for in some cases it is better to act than to pass and offer no other bid which is not even more dangerous. When your partner is a good player you may allow yourself somewhat more latitude in raising, but a strong player can be expected to have the ability to manage weak trump suits.

On the following deal a difficult contract was reached due to one player's supporting his partner with only two trumps; but the declarer was able, by means of fortunate placement of the honors held against him and skillful play, to fulfill his contract nevertheless.

1—North might have bid three notrump with as good reason, but he felt that South might hold a break two-suiter and he wanted to show that he had the tops in one of the suits.

2—South, with his void club suit and paucity of honors, did not relish a notrump contract, but was willing to play at a game in spades because of his distributional strength.

West opened a low diamond, underleading his ace in the hope that dummy might hold a combination such as king-ace-ten. East, however, did not take a losing finesse to a possible queen in East's hand. East won the first trick and cashed his second diamond, but now the suit was blocked and West was unable to take the third round of diamonds, which would have insured delivery of the contract. East ended by leading a spade, which dummy won with the king.

While South could see that he was safe against an even spade division, he did not care to put all his eggs in one basket, and since it was obvious that the diamond suit was blocked, he formed a plan for ridding himself of the remaining diamonds. First lead from dummy, a low club, on which East played the ten and South ruffed. A spade was now led to dummy's ace and another club ruffed. South was now left with only the queen of trumps, which he laid down. This revealed the fact that East still had the jack.

Now South led a heart to the ace and dummy played dummy's ace of clubs. If the king had not failed there would have been little hope of a better result than down two, but South was fortunate in clearing the suit on this play. The rest was easy. The club queen followed the ace and East ruffed with a high trump, South discarding a diamond. Now East had nothing left but hearts, and when he led a low one South allowed it to ride around to dummy's jack, giving dummy the lead again for South's last diamond to be thrown off on the fifth club. The king of hearts took the last trick. If East had refused to ruff the club, South would simply have discarded all his diamonds and they would have taken the high heart for his tenth trick.

By G. A. PHILLIPS.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—(UPI)—United

State government and first-grade corporate bonds continued high in investment favor in today's listed market, although lower-priced issues were a little weaker.

Apparently reconciled to the expressed view of leading bankers that the government would have no difficulty in raising the huge sums called for in President Roosevelt's budget

message, investors in federal issues were from 1-3 to around 5-8 of a point higher than yesterday's treasury

bonds, including the 3-14s of '41, up

7-22ds at 105; the 3-8s of '41, up

1-4 at 104.31, and the 3-3s of '40, up 12-32s at 104.30.

Small net gains were all that was needed to push the number of first-grade bonds, especially some of the telephone and other public utilities.

Others equaling or surpassing their old highs included American Telephone, Santa Fe, Indiana Steel, Pennsylvania and St. Paul Union Depot.

The Associated Press average for 10

utilities was up 1 point higher at 85.34 and net for 20 rails was higher at 87.79.

Profit-taking interrupted the upward trend in lower-priced bonds, although there were a considerable number advancing as much as a point.

Young's, New York, had 1 point at

45. Per cent Marquette, 4 were 1-4 lower at 80 and Alleghany Corporation 5s held a point at 25. Slightly lower prices were taken for others.

An advance in the average price of all bonds listed on the stock exchange from 89.54 as of December 1,

to 90.72 on January 1, was announced today. On the latter date

there were 1,540 issues against 1,575

on December 1.

The foreign section was quiet and showed little change.

Transfers today aggregated $13.

671,000 par value, compared with $15,343,000 on Monday.

TARZAN AND THE LION MAN No. 99

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

In fascinated horror, Rhonda and Tarzan pictured in their minds the events of the strange story as the monster scientist related them. "There were thousands of gorillas here. I poisoned their food. I shot them with poisoned arrows. But the poison was only an anesthetic to assist my delicate surgery.

"I removed their germ cells and substituted the deathless human germ cells which I had taken from the bodies of the nobles and royalty in Westminster Abbey. For years I watched the gorillas with increasing disappointment, for they gave no outward indication of the germ cell substitution.

"Then I began to notice an increase in intelligence among them. Also they quarreled more, were greedier, more vindictive—more and more they were revealing the traits of men. As their minds improved I taught them agriculture and architecture. Under my direction they built this city, which I named London."

"To all intents and purposes, I transformed gorillas into men!" Tarzan and Rhonda looked at each other. The same thought was in the mind of each. Was this creature now about to reverse the process and transform human beings into gorillas? And were they to be the victims of that monstrous experiment?
